The sleuths who had gone through the alley had ascended a fire escape to the roof. Evidently nothing was doing in the rear of the house, so they hustled down the fire escape and returned to the street and oined their companions on the stoop. With one mighty effort the raiding party forced in the front door and rushed inside. All was silent. Every room was searched but no trace of any human being was found. There wasn't even a scrap of paper to indicate that a poolroom was ever in the place. There were no telephones in the building.

I should be happy, if those gentlemen wish to live, that they shall live until the canal is completed. It will be at least fifty years before the canal is completed."

> Mr. Morgan caustically criticised the Canal Commission for not spending more time at Panama. "We pay them a bonus of $15 a day," he said, "but even that fails to keep them there. I'm surprised they do not take their lives in their hands and get that additional $15 a day."

"It's because of the mosquitoes," suggested Mr. Burrows, sotto voce.

"Oh, the mosquitoes!" replied Mr. Morgan. "Ah! they have been the insidious foe of canal construction ever since I was a boy. The first mosquitoes we encountered

The sole reason for the existence of the pending bill was to kill off the Canal Commission, said Mr. Morgan. That was the reason, he said, why he offered his amendciety, together with Capt. Cottroll and his ment in order to prevent the President or detectives from the West Thirtieth street anybody else from suspending operations. "I want to force the continuation of opera-

Then the raiders descended on the Knickerbocker Club, a negro resort at 104 West Thirtieth street, said to be a gambling house. Five prison-arrangements are ware taken to force the continuation of operations at Panama. I don't intend to permit anybody to drop this hot potato. We all know that the Isthmian Canal Commission does not work to the advantage of canal construction," said Mr. Morgan. "The President says he might get along with any commission that could be named."

Mr. Morgan spoke at length regarding the Chagres River, and was interrupted by Mr. Gorman, who whispered samething to him.

"My friend suggests that the time is short," spoke up the venerable Alabama Senator, amid laughter. Mr. Gorman blushed and joined in the laugh. "Yes, the time as compared with the time it will take to build the canal is very short. [Laughter.] It is a wrostle with nature. No dam can be maintained at Bohio that will ever restrain the Chagres River. The great landslides there have covered up great landslides there have covered up ery sticking up like the skeleton of a masto-don. I may be timid, but I confess I am scared at the idea of trying to build a canal there. But that will not prevent me from voting money to try to build it." Mr. Morgan declared that he held himself ready, whenever the Senate wanted the facts, to prove that the shift from Nicaraugua to Panama was made by Con-gress through a deal between the transontinental railroads and certain rich and powerful men.

Mr. McComas withdrew his proposed amendment requiring that all supplies for the canal be carried in American vessels.

As amended the bill places the military, civil and judicial control of the Canal Zone in the hands of the President until the adjournment of Congress in 1906, author-izes him to construct the canal to acquire izes him to construct the canal, to acquire by condemnation the outstanding stock of the Panama Railroad and to deposit not exceeding $1,500,000 in the Panama branch of an American bank.

RATE LAW UNWISE, SAYS FISH.

But Railroad Men Are With the President Against Rebates and Private Car Lines. WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 .- Stuyvesant Fish,

He did not doubt the power of the Government to regulate rates, he said, but he did doubt the wisdom of doing it.

rates, he said, but he did doubt the wisdom of doing it.

He was willing, he told the committee, to go as far as it would to stop all tricks-whether it was in the form of rebates or in calling a private line threequarters of a mile in length a railroad and giving it 20 per cent. of the charges on a haul of several hundred miles.

The motion to strike out was lost, 31 to 112.

An amendment was agreed to authorizing a survey and estimate of cost of the improvement of the Mississippi River between the Missouri River and St. Paul.

Mr. Scudder (Dem., N. Y.) created some consternation among the few members sitting the bill out, at about 7 o'clock, by announcing that he had a procession of twenty amendments to offer, providing for surveys of projects for improvements of the harbors on Long Island. He said he came from Oyster Bay and he warned the committee that all the strenuosity of that vicinity was not to be found on Sagamore Hill. He tried ten or a dozen, all failing to secure any support, and then gave up the contest. As a reward for his pertinacity and consideration in not insisting upon his point of no quorum, a provision was inserted at the suggestion of Mr. Burton for the survey of Mattituck harbor.

Resolutions were adopted calling on A majority of the people and of the men who operated the railroads of the country. he declared, were with President Roosevelt on that question. The private car lines were undoubtedly an abuse, pure and simple, which ought to be stopped. The roads made as little use of them as they could, but could not drop them entirely, because the packing firms insisted upon them. Possessing the absolute power to fix rates for their cars, there was nothing to prevent the private line operator from rebating the freight charges to the shippers.

Blaze Near Two Theatres.

There was a small fire in a carpenter's shop under Hawes's hat store at the northwest corner of Thirtieth street and Broadway last night. It stirred up a seare among the food consumers in a restaurant next door. The Bijou Theatre and Wallack's are nearby, and their audiences heard the engine bells and grew a trifle uneasy. No one went out, however. The fire was very
